

UIBE News

UIBE May 8, 2010 - by Cui Xuyan

Vice President Huzi Akio from Fukuyama University visits UIBE

Vice President Huzi Akio from Fukuyama University visited UIBE, meeting with Vice President Lin Guijun.

The Vice President warmly welcomed Professor Huzi Akio, congratulating him on his upcoming promotion as vice president of Fukuyama University and thanked him for taking part in discussions between the two universities.

Professor Huzi Akio and Vice President Lin discussed the program between the two universities, challenge and possible cooperation in the future. Vice President Lin said that the two universities started switching teachers and exchanging students a long time ago, and together built a Confucius institute at Fukuyama University. He hopes the two universities have further communication and cooperation.

Professor Huzi Akio said Fukuyama University attaches great importance to communication and cooperate with UIBE. The two universities are always in good relations. After his promotion to Vice President, he would push for further cooperation between the two universities.

Vice President Lin suggested the universities exchange more teachers and the students, and hoped for further research with UIBE teachers on Asian financial and economics.

During the visit, Professor Huzi Akio met a Japanese teacher and 7 students who would soon be leaving for Fukuyama University.

Article provided by Cui Xuyan