La Trobe University of Australia Visits UIBE

Vice president Lin Guijun met with Professor Pei Likun, Director of the China Research Center, and Professor Anthony Jarvis, La Trobe University Vice Director of the School of Arts & Social Science in the afternoon of May 14. Mr. Xia Haiquan, Vice Director of the International Relations and Exchange Office also attended the meeting.

Vice president Lin Guijun first extended his warm welcome to the visit of the La Trobe University delegation. They then discussed the details of the program, and Vice-President Lin expressed his support of further cooperation. Both parties discussed the all-round cooperation in the fields of arts & social science, language and Business studies.

During the presentation to students of UIBE's SIS China-Australia program, the visiting guests discussed the teaching and research advantages of La Trobe, the facilities available to international students, and some of the special characteristics of the different schools at La Trobe University. The students responded passionately to the descriptions of campus life and the university's academic programs, and raised many questions to express their interest in studying in Australia.

La Trobe University was built up in 1964. It is among the top universities in Australia, and renowned for its outstanding teaching quality and creativity. It is widely recognized in Australia as the most active university in teaching and research. Besides, in the past four years, it is one of the universities that received the most research funds from the government. It is a world famous comprehensive university that leads in teaching, research and on-job training. It always sticks to its education mission of "to keep the world first-class quality; to carry forward the fine scholarly tradition; to focus on the innovation of teaching methods; to create an academic atmosphere of equity and liberty.

UIBE is proud to be associated to such a University, and will endeavour to work hard to make the China-Australia program of mutual benefit.
